GUIDED NOTES — FILL IN THE MISSING FIGURES AS YOU FOLLOW THE LECTURE

1. International migrants number approximately _____ globally, representing about 3.6 percent of world population — but their distribution is highly concentrated, with 68 percent residing in just 20 ...

2. Second-generation populations are large and growing: in the United States, approximately _____ of adults report having at least one immigrant parent

3. Stateless persons: UNHCR estimates approximately _____ stateless persons identified globally as of 2023 — with the true figure likely higher, as statelessness is severely undercounted. The Rohingya (at ...

REFLECTION — ANSWER IN FULL SENTENCES

Wimmer and Glick Schiller argue that methodological nationalism has distorted migration research by treating nation-states as natural containers for social life. What would migration research — and migration policy — look like if it genuinely took ...

The 'integration paradox' suggests that successful integration does not always reduce discrimination. What does this imply for integration programs and policies? Who bears responsibility for integration — migrants, host societies, or both?
